

XIV Euralex International Congress

The Congresses of the European Association for Lexicography (Euralex) bring together professional lexicographers, publishers, researchers, software developers, and others interested in dictionaries of all types. The next Euralex Congress will be held in Leeuwarden, The Netherlands from 6 - 10 July 2010. The programme will include plenary lectures, parallel sessions, software demonstrations, pre-congress tutorials and specialized workshops, a special session for students and work-in-progress, a book and software exhibition, and social events for participants and their guests.

The 2010 conference will be hosted by the Fryske Akademy (Frisian Academy) in Leeuwarden, the capital of the Dutch bilingual Province of Friesland. The Fryske Akademy does research on Frisian and Friesland. Over the years the Fryske Akademy has published a wide range of Frisian dictionaries. Frisian being a small non-state language, the organising committee especially welcomes papers on any aspect of the lexicography of non-state languages.

Papers, posters and software demonstrations are invited on all topics of lexicography. E-mail submission is required. The submission process has two parts. First, authors are asked to go to <http://euralex2010.eu/en/submission.php>, to fill out a submission registration form, which provides the congress organisers with important administrative information. Once the registration process is successfully completed, authors are asked to send by e-mail to the address info@euralex2010.nl an MS-Word or RTF attachment with the title of their contribution and the submission. Submissions should reach the programme committee before 1 October 2009.
